General Notes:

Family Verbal History

Lorenz Reindl, it is told, left Germany when he was 18 to avoid military service. This would have been about 1836. Per the Encyclopedia of Military History there were no specific international conflicts in Germany at that time. The Austrian Empire was still developing to the south after the collapse of the Holy Roman Empire in 1806, France had reestablished the monarchy in 1830 but was unstable, and Prussia to the east was getting stronger. The area between these developing powers was often referred to as the Rhine Confederation. There was general unrest among various fiefdoms in the southern and eastern areas that eventually developed into widespread conflicts in the late 1840s. Lorenz presumably entered the US via New York, though he is believed to have been a stowaway. After Lorenz was in the US for a few years, he sent for Magdalena. They were subsequently married in the United States.
